Ever heard of the Veterinary Information Network (VIN)?

Did you know students can join VIN for FREE?

If you answered no to either question, now is a perfect time to take advantage of your complimentary VIN membership and begin using the wide variety of resources.

First year student?
Or prepping for surgery classes?
You'll want to look at the 3D Interactive Anatomy content.

Want to get a head start translating your coursework into actual cases? VIN has over 30 cases in the Virtual Clinic to help you practice your diagnostic and therapeutic skills.

Refining your surgical technique or can't wait to start? The procedure videos walk you through every step of the way: sterile technique, the first incision, and a variety of suture patterns to close. (And the important stuff in between, too.)

If learning through questions and conversation is more your style, board-certified specialists on over 30 specialty message boards are available to respond to questions about your cases.

You can also find Rounds discussions, client handouts, flashcards, drug calculators, full-length articles, support for financial and mental health, and much, much more. VIN has even created textbooks for its members. VINcyclopedia is a quick resource on diseases when you need to refresh your memory before rounds or doing a patient discharge. The VIN Veterinary Drug Handbook is not only crammed full of information on drugs for all species; most drugs have linked client information handouts and a calculator to help you easily and correctly determine the dose.
